

With great excitement, we can inform you that this year the jubilant tenth, already known to all, congress of neuroscience in Rijeka – NeuRi will take place. Throughout the years, NeuRi has gained international significance and has positioned itself as one of the major regional gatherings of neuroscience lovers. Traditionally the congress will take place in Croatia, more specifically, at the Medical Faculty in Rijeka, which is still the European Capital of culture, and on the island of Rab, at the Psychiatry hospital of Rab. This year, neuroscience lovers will also, for the first time, have the opportunity to follow the congress in an online form.

In contemporary times, when the world of research and science brings something new daily, and each new piece of knowledge opens up new questions. These questions are wisely knitting an already tangled web of knowledge that concerns the functioning of the human body and mind. We live in a really exciting and challenging time, in which we experience some radical changes and even the destruction of paradigms that fundamentally change the picture of the world around us. We live in a period where we are expected to respond to sometimes even unasked questions - what is consciousness, how should we define the way we perceive and integrate the experience of the world around us, and what is the notion of free will (if there is any left). It is just a matter of time when almost all of these will get their answers. Neuroscience has matured into an interdisciplinary branch, linking the knowledge from the most detailed, molecular level with those of the so-called higher levels - tissue, organ, and organ systems, and ultimately, the whole body. For those reasons, the significance of the NeuRi congress is larger than ever before. NeuRi gathers experts from all branches of neuroscience, biology, genetics, surgery, and psychiatry, including also psychologists and computer scientists, with the goal of integrating all of the latest researches and bits of knowledge into a fantastic comprehensive congress, all for the best participant experience.

This jubilant year we have prepared three days rich with the scientific and educational program. We have gathered leading experts from diverse scientifically developed countries (like Uk, the USA, Germany, and Croatia), whose lectures we'll all enjoy. Under the motto "Education&Experience", apart from the fantastic lectures and newly acquired knowledge, all the participants will have the opportunity to socialize, share their contacts, and make some new acquaintances.
